

Last week, Congressman Blumenauer attended the grand opening of the Gateway Center for Domestic Violence Services. He helped cut the ribbon along with Multnomah County Chair Jeff Cogen, Senator Ron Wyden, Advisory Council Member Teri Doyle, Director Martha Strawn Morris, and Portland City Commissioner Dan Saltzman. A main feature of the center is the remote courtroom, where victims of domestic violence can have a hearing for a restraining order with a judge using live video feed. The Gateway Center is a "one stop" service center, providing multiple resources to victims, and is the first domestic violence facility in Portland to have a publicly listed address.

Congressman Blumenauer speaks at the Gateway Center for Domestic Violence Services

Reviewing the Gateway Center's remote courtroom